

Social Justice

I support a living wage for city employees and employees of contractors with the city.

We all need to work with the school system to ensure that school support personnel, who are presently paid embarrassingly low wages, receive just and living wages. The situation of school support personnel is much worse than that of teachers. Our schools could not function without these support personnel, and it is bad public policy for the school system to exploit people's desperation for jobs by paying such low wages to these important employees.

An effective, multi-modal public transportation system is essential as a matter of social justice. The most practical thing the government can do for poor and working class people is to provide a public transportation so that these households won't have to maintain an automobile.

By working with state government, we can ensure that our county jail is not our mental health facility. This is a moral and a practical necessity for our continued development as a city.
